PART II

Advanced and Specialized Topics

In Part II, we take a problem-oriented view of make. It is often not obvious how to apply make to real-world problems such as multidirectory builds, new programming languages, portability and performance issues, or debugging. Each of these problems is discussed, along with a chapter covering several complex examples.